MEYER HISTORY

The following notes are attempted translations of facts stated in German in old public records:

In 1550 Herman Meyer had the status of serf to Lübbecke de Wond. He bought a load of hay from the pasture in the Commons for three "Groschen" -- about three pennies.

In 1686 Meyer of Dono had the status of serf to the house of Böckel. He was supplied with 95 bushels of seed for the Commons Meadow.

In 1704 Meyer of Dono had a complete farm, rendered public service, paid taxes, and paid his tithes to the Convent of Oesede.

Later records show that descendants furnished four horses and labor to help build public bridges and roads.

Many records and the original buildings were destroyed during the Thirty Years' War (Religious) of 1618 - 1648.

New corn shed at right

DONOHOF in 1954 -- View from South
(Now used to store farm machinery)

During the earlier years there were living rooms at the left, inside, and stables at the right. Harvest carts were drawn through the big gate into the roomy hall (Deele) which occupies the biggest part of the house. On the upper level hay and grain were stored to the roof. The building is typical of similar buildings used in Germany for hundreds of years.

The present owner is named Borgmeier, and is, according to Lydia (D-32), "related through a line which had no male descendants".

The large beam over the door of DONOHOF is of hand-hewn oak and very old. Portions of the present building are relatively new but those who have examined the structure say the beam is at least 300 years old.

The following inscription is hand cut in German-style print on the long beam supported by the small wooden brackets:

"Dies irdische Häus zū dieser Frist	This earthly house is for a little eine kleine Zeit meine wohnung ist --	time my dwelling --
Gedenke an das Häus, weil Dū in	Remember while you are in this diesem Häuse bist --	house to --
Fürchte Gott und sein Gericht	Fear God and his Laws,
Himmel und Hölle ist sein Gedicht --	Heaven and Hell are his design --
Ora et labora -- Gott allein die Ehre."	Pray and Work -- to God alone the Glory.*

The large horizontal gate-beam (door) which is divided into four parts by three brackets bears the following:

"Bals Heinrich Meyer und seine Ehefrau,	Bals Heinrich Meyer and his wife,
Anna Katharine Ilsabein Meyer, geb.	Anna Katharine Ilsabein Meyer, born
Wittemeier, den 17, Juli 1824."	Wittemeier, the 17th of July, 1824.

The curved supporting corner beams bear, left, the letters "W.J.H.", and, right, "Todtmann". The latter is the name of the builder.

* "To God Alone the Glory" is a dedication which appears as a marginal scribble on many of Johann Sebastian Bach's scores. He lived from 1685 to 1760.

Notes:

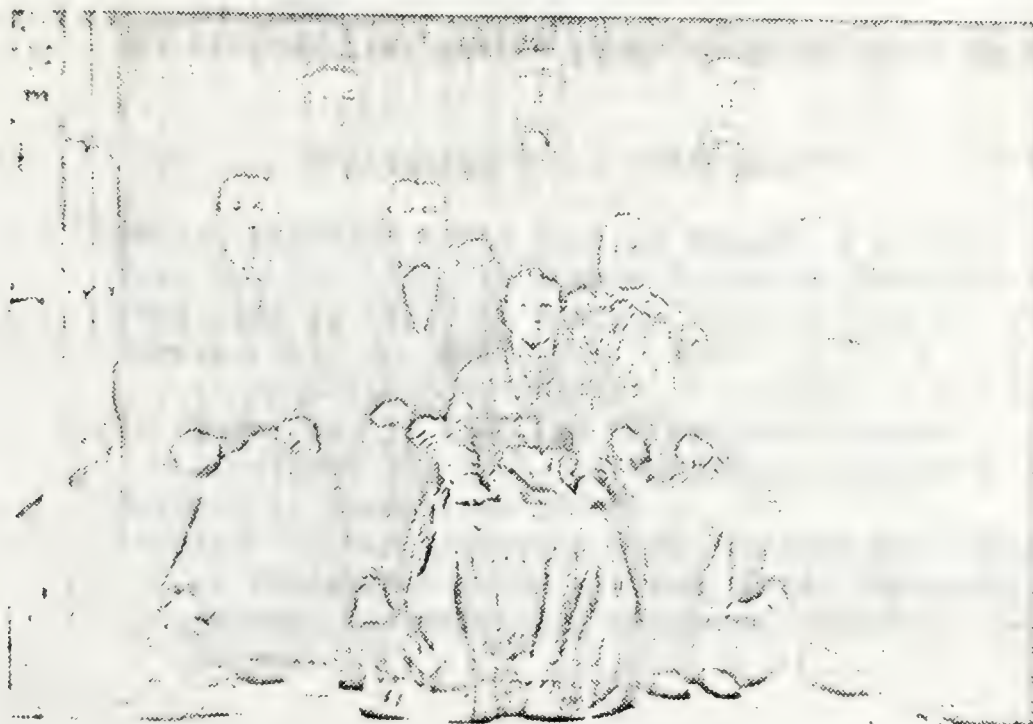

Dono is in the Wiehen mountain region.

As the crow flies Dono is 3 miles from Buende, and Buende is 8 miles from Herford, that makes it 11 miles from Dono to Herford as scaled on the map.

Herford is noted for its cigars.

JOHANN HEINRICH MEYER, C-1, was dead when this picture of his family was taken.

Died July 5, 1883, at Calumet, Wisconsin (age 55)
Married to G. FREDERICK THUERWAECHTER, a farmer
Born Mar. 4, 1816, at Rechtenbach, Palatinate, Germany
The Palatinate was a state of the old German empire, lying along the Rhine; its ruler, when it was not connected with Bavaria, was a palgrave or count palatine, who was one of the electors;
it was sometimes divided into two states: the lower (or Rhine) Palatinate, and the upper Palatinate, now included in Bavaria, Rhine Province (Prussia), Baden and Hesse.

The first part of the paper is devoted to a general consideration of the subject. It is shown that the theory of the subject is not yet fully developed, and that there is a need for further research. The author then proceeds to a detailed examination of the various theories which have been proposed, and shows that each of them has its own merits and its own defects. He then proposes a new theory, which he claims to be more complete and more satisfactory than any of the others. The paper concludes with a summary of the author's views, and a list of references.
